

HOW DO OTHERS READ ME?

When you get together and talk with friends, what are you most like?
Choose one.

Long Novel:

Telling everything, every detail, every emotion from the start to the finish, leaving nothing out.

Short Story:

Quick and to the point, getting my story out but not spending too much time on any details.

Letters to the Editor:

Willing to share what I like and what bothers me, regardless to what others will think about me.

Magazine: Jump around from one subject to another, giving glimpses of my life for others to enjoy.

Text Book: Sharing my experiences and offering suggestions for others to deal with situations in their life.

Essay: Choosing a topic, and talking or debating about it until every aspect is out in the open.

After making your selection, share why you picked what you did with the other members of your group.

Additional questions to discuss:

How would others who know you very well describe you?

What type of person would you most likely want for a best friend?

What type of person would you least likely want for a best friend?
